Share the Rainbow

Training course

Georgia

20.11-27.11.2022

ICPI
International Center for Peace
and Integration

Flanders
State of the Art

With the support of the Erasmus+ Programme of the European Union

What?

“Share the Rainbow” aims to be a training course focused on youth workers and their daily practice involving gender inclusiveness and support to LGBTQ+ people and the community. We also aim to help build bridges between youth workers and participating associations so that more effective, sustainable, and accelerated change can take place. Youth workers will learn from each other and lead change together. Within such training, they will be bringing the benefits of collaboration back to their community.

“Share the Rainbow” aims therefore to provide participants with the necessary competences to include sexual orientation and gender identity (SOGI) in their youth work practice, and to combat prejudice and discriminatory attitudes towards the LGBTQ+ community.

Objectives:

- To promote equality, solidarity and social inclusion among all, especially on the basis of gender identity and different sexual orientation;
- To support youth workers with knowledge and activities to improve the inclusion of LGBTQ+ youth in their organizations and provide a safe space;
- To facilitate intercultural learning among participants from different EU and partner countries, exchanging information on LGBTQ+ reality in different countries while building international partnership and co-operation;
- To strengthen the capacities of youth workers and their NGOs to actively participate in society on the debate of human rights by providing tools and activities for campaigning acceptance of diversity and equality, contributing to the development of a sense of European citizenship.

About us

ICPI
International Center for Peace
and Integration

International Center for Peace and Integration (ICPI) is a Georgian non-for-profit non-governmental organisation with a mission to provide the platform for the development of self aware, progressive and engaged youth in civil society.

We encourage personal growth, innovation and positive change through critical thinking, Intercultural understanding, support for initiatives and collaboration. We believe in the power of education as a means to plant the seeds of change in attitude and action. The team of ICPI promotes democratic values, peace building and social entrepreneurship for a more sustainable society.

ICPI was founded in 2011 by young people with more than 10 years of working experience in the non-governmental sector. We work in different social, educational and cultural fields with several target groups such as: youth, IDPs, people with fewer opportunities, etc. ICPI is actively involved in the ERASMUS+ Programme and cooperates with different state institutions and organisations in Georgia, in Europe and partner countries .

JOETZ is a young, open and dynamic non-governmental youth organizations in Belgium for kids and youngsters from 3 to 30 years old. We develop projects and activities around health promotion, international youth work and social inclusion. We also organise a wide variety of holidays for kids and youngsters and training for youth workers.

JOETZ is mainly a health promoter and works around health through different campaigns and actions. Our actions are varied and we work around mental as well as physical health. We also work around various other topics like environment, gender issues, racism, youth unemployment, etc...

Our aim is to give opportunity to our youngsters/youth workers to train themselves so that they can have impact on local communities.

You?

The course is designed for youth workers, youth leaders, youth educators, social workers, NGO workers and representatives of our organizations as well as partner organizations. Those working with young people and who would like to expand their practice or career to be more gender-inclusive, expanding their youth work practice for LGBTQ+ youth.

Each partner organization will intend to include at least one participant with fewer opportunities or difficulties to adapt to the society who are looking for opportunities to improve their skills and work in the youth field.

The profile of the participants is as following:

- Resident in the country of their sending/receiving organization;
- Age 18+;
- Priority will be given to participants with follow-up project ideas;
- Those, who are working directly with youngsters and are motivated to support the LGBTQ+ community;
- Basic level of English language;
- An interest in gender issues, LGBTQ+ rights, equality & inclusion, queer activism, campaigning and advocacy (no previous experience is required);
