Climate vs Health

Outdoor camp

Deadline to select the team leader

01 March 2023

Deadline to select participants

20 March 2023

Aim of the project

The main aim of this project is to raise young people's awareness and empower them on the importance of mental health as an integral part of personal health through outdoor education.

Objectives of the project

- talking about how the climate crisis affects mental health
- spreading knowledge among young people about what mental health is, identifying its components, recognizing challenging situations for mental well-being
- informing and fostering the discussion among young people raising awareness of the importance of mental health and reducing stigma
- building a community of informed young leaders recognizing the importance of active participation and promoting mental health activities in their communities
- giving youth tools to engage and mitigate mental health issues linked to the climate crisis

Profile of participants

The participants chosen for this project are young people aged 16-25:

- who are less experienced on topic
- who are motivated to discover camping and can bear challenges
- who are interested in learning and doing research on the project subject
- who are able to build good relations with other participants from different cultures
- individuals who are motivated to organize or participate in follow-up activities following the project
- who have socioeconomic, geographical, and educational obstacles and face low levels of social inclusion
- communication language skills in English (it is important for being able to interact and network with other participants). However, weak English skills are not disqualifying potential participants and tailored solutions will be sought case by case
